Part of Script

The 15th New York Infantry had been trained for a combat role yet were kept behind the lines to perform labour. (Start animation map of Unit landing in Brest and being transferred to Saint Nazaire.) Landing in Brest on December 27th 1917 they were transferred to Saint Nazaire where they helped construct and maintain a major port there. (B Roll of construction) Despite what they heard many members of the 15th desperately wanted to go to the trenches. In reference to the trenches Horace Pippin would write in his autobiography.

“We did not fear (SIC), it were a place that we all wanted (SIC) to see, and at that time we did not think it right to go there and not see it.” (Page 3) (Read quote but have it on screen+pic of Horrace.)
